WEDNESDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 14.

A CONSCIENCE-STEICKEN THIEF .- The mystery of a recent diamond robbery, upon which the New York police have tried their wits in vain, was solved in an unexpected manner by the return of the gem through the confessional. The owner of the diamond was Miss Madge Pratchatt. In the early part of September the family returned from the country. The men who carried the trunks were directed to the rooms in which trunks were directed to the rooms in which they were to put them. One was carried upstairs by the helper to Miss Pratchatt's room in the second story. He set it down beside the dressing case, upon which at the time lay three diamond rings belonging to the young woman. They were there when the young woman was called out to see about the trunks. When she returned to find her own truck there were only two find her own truck there were only two rings. The one that was missing was the most valuable, and was worth between $200 and $300 The young lady received a letter from a priest notifying her that the ring had been left with him by a pentient thief. The priest handed it to Miss Pretchait,

FOUND IN A SWAMP -Two three-year-old children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryan, of Castleton, Va., wandered from home on Friday and were not found notil Sainrday avening. More than 350 men were out hunting the woods and swamps and quarries, and the search was about to be given up when a few leading spirits suggested one more search, which was successful. One of the the searchers, Wm. Brown, turned into an the searchets, win brown, turned litte an unexplored region known as the Swamp Meedow. In the deepest part of this dreary place he heard a noise, and there he found the two children, safe, but tired, hungry and cold. The searching party reached home at about 7 in the evening and all the bells in town were rung to soncuree the news that the children had been found. The day be-fore the little ones wandered away the mother received news that her father had suddenly expired. This, with the worry and fright at the less of her children, almost
